Dear Mr. Munz: In a paper by you and Mr. Johnson in the February 1922 number of the Bulletin of the Torrey Botanical Club, in writing of Frasera Parryi, Torr. you mention the finding of one plant of this species on the hillside at San Dimas, and speak of its occurring in the Transition Zone of the San Bernardino and San Jacinto Mountains. Permit me to say that I have found about a dozen of these plants in the past two years (1920-1921) on the open plain, growing among the chaparral, below the mouth of Devils Canon, about six or seven miles northwest of San Bernardino. I passed along the main road leading to Devils Canon last Saturday in a machine and failed to notice any, but I have no doubt a careful search would reveal quite a few at this station. I am merely calling your attention to the fact in case you wish to use it at any future time or to supplement the record.

Sincerely yours,

J. V. S. Dudge
